STATE INEBRIATE FARM

Others From Western Part of the State.

John McGrath, 20 years of age, and Patrick Kelley, aged 35 years, com-mitted to the state inebriate farm at Poquetanuck at the Monday morning

ion of the city court by Judge

John H. Barnes are the first patients received at the farm through a criminal court. Previous to that time four commitments were made through probate courts. One from Farmington, one from Suffield, and two from propate courts. One from Farmington, one from Suffield, and two from Bridgeport.

The various city courts, common pleas courts and superior courts in the state have the power of committing patients to the farm. Judges of probate may commit patients to the farm upon recommendation of two physicians, an examination being made by both doctors a week previous to the time of commitment.

McGrath and Kelley have been bebefore the city court before on the charge of being drunk and as they seem to have trouble in keeping sober Judge Barnes thought that the farm was the best place for them and sent them there for six months. If they try to escape they will be taken to jail where they will complete the remainder of their sentence. First they will receive treatment at the hospital and when able to work will be given employment on the farm.

In the opinion of the police such disposition of chronic drunks will keep some of them from becoming intoxicated so often.

Turn Down Resolution Presented by

Rev. Peter C. Wright. By a decisive vote Monday the Baptist Ministers' conference at Philadelphia, refused to adopt a resolution protesting against the nationwide movement for preparedness to guard the United States against a sudden attack by a foreign enemy. The Rev. Peter C. Wright, pastor of Gethsemane Baptist church, offered the resolution at the ministers' meeting in the First

Saptist church.

Rev. Mr. Wright said he had been "troubled in mind by the avalanche of preparedness talk." He disliked the idea that college students were being drawn into the movement. "As a soldier of the Prince of Peace,"

"As a soldier of the Prince of Peace." continued the minister. "I must protest against national preparedness. I am certain that the expenditure of billions of dollars for war preparations will not insure universal peace." The Rev. Mr. Wright said too much money already had been spent to enlarge the army and navy.

A different view was taken by the Rev. Archibald Anderson of Southampton, Pa, who said:

"I too am a soldier of the Prince of Peace, but as a veteran of the Spanish-American war I see clearly the absolute necessity of preparedness on the part of the United States. When the bullets were whistling around us down there in Cuba, we were thankful that adequate preparation had been made before we began to fight. It must be remembered that national disarmament on our part would not mean disarmament on the part of other nations. As a minister of the gospel, I favor universal disarmament.
